In 2009, the government of El Salvador denied the permit for a gold mining project by Canadian mining company Pacific Rim that risked contaminating the Lempa River, the country's primary source of drinking water, with cyanide. Now, Pacific Rim is using an international tribunal convened under the US-Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA) to extort over $100 million dollars from El Salvador for depriving the mining company of profits it MIGHT have made!

WHAT WE'LL BE DOING:

Grim Reapers representing the Pacific Rim Mining Company will staff a table giving out free samples of cyanide contaminated mineral water. The table will be lined with dead and dying people who drank the cyanide contaminated water. Pacific Rim CEO Thomas Shrake will encourage passersby to try the samples as the reapers give them cups of contaminated water, add an extra shot of cyanide, and leer threateningly at their gold jewelry. Meanwhile protesters will denounce Pacific Rim and the Dominican Republic-Central America Free Trade Agreement, calling for passage of Canadian House of Commons Bill C-300, An Act Respecting Corporate Accountability for the Activities of Mining, Oil or Gas Corporations in Developing Countries, and the TRADE Act (HR 3012/S. 2821), legislation in the US Congress that would require new environmental safeguards to be added to the Central America Free Trade Agreement
